Amelio Story - Amelio was born in Naples, Italy in July of 1896. In 1920, he immigrated to America seeking the opportunity for a better life. Before long, he settled in Altoona, Pennsylvania. Amelio was soon employed with the local street car system and advanced to become a manager. He eventually met Rosie Fusco, an Italian woman born in the United States. They were married October 22, 1927. They had 4 girls, Norma, Martha, Enes, and Lola. Amelio, a very talented man, entertained the community with his singing, as well as his directing of the opera within The Mishler Theater in Altoona. He also loved to cook and eat, and his favorite food was pizza. Amelio wished to share his beloved food, so in the 1940's he built a small pizza parlor in his backyard. He opened Amelio's Pizza Shop, a pizza carry-out. Amelio soon became well-known for his delicious pizza. The community would line-up in the alley way to get the best pizza in town. Amelio passed on his love of food and cooking to his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. His love and legacy remains in the homes and hearts of his family, as many of them still hold dear their possession of his original pizza pans. Amelio's daughter Norma had a son, Steve, who shared his grandfather's passion, attended culinary school, and aspired of one day owning a restaurant of his own. Steve's aspirations have always driven the heart of his daughters. So, 101 years after Amelio settled in the United States, Steve's daughter, and Amelio's great-granddaughter, Toni, established Amelio's Pizzeria to honor the great Amelio Cecere.
